Ben is an experienced foreign-qualified corporate lawyer with deep experience advising startups and emerging companies, as well as venture capital, growth and angel investors, on all manner of corporate transactions for clients in the US, Japan and Canada, from incorporations and SAFE and convertible financings to private tender offers and mergers and acquisitions for late stage private companies. Ben is in the process of getting licensed in British Columbia.

Ben’s experience across global technology and venture ecosystems provides valuable insight for founders and investors in Canada’s dynamic innovation economy. Drawing on his experience advising high-growth companies and top-tier investors in Silicon Valley, Ben offers strategic guidance that blends international best practices with a keen understanding of Canada’s regulatory and fundraising landscape. His cross-border perspective enables Canadian clients to navigate financings, expansions, and exits with confidence, while positioning their businesses and investments for long-term success.

Prior to joining Osler, Ben was a senior associate at a leading Silicon Valley law firm known for advising the highest calibre of technology companies on the most critical matters, and prior to that practiced in Tokyo, Japan, where he advised Japanese and international clients on cross-border corporate transactions in Japanese and English.
