Sierra is an associate in Osler’s disputes group. She maintains a general civil and commercial litigation practice. Sierra obtained her J.D. from the University of Toronto. Prior to attending law school, Sierra graduated with a Bachelor of Science (Honours) with Distinction and a Certificate in International Studies from Queen’s University. While at Queen’s, Sierra completed a semester abroad at an internationally-ranked university in Singapore and attended the Queen’s Global Health and Disability Program in the U.K. While at law school, Sierra served as co-president of the Women & the Law Society and volunteered with the Women’s Legal Education and Action Fund.

She was also a caseworker at Downtown Legal Services, where she assisted low-income Toronto residents with family law disputes. Prior to joining Osler, Sierra worked as a research assistant with the University of Toronto International Reproductive and Sexual Health Law Program. Sierra joined the firm as a summer student in 2021 and completed her articles with the firm from 2022–2023.
