A partner in the Disputes Group of our Vancouver office, Teresa’s practice focuses on securities litigation and regulation. With more than 25 years of experience, she has been integral to multiple shareholder disputes, hostile take-over bids and proxy fights as well as contested plans of arrangement. Teresa’s practice also includes securities class action defence.

Teresa’s practice includes securities regulatory matters, where she has represented clients during investigations and enforcement hearings before various provincial securities commissions, which have included allegations of insider trading, illegal distributions, market manipulation, discretionary trading, suitability matters and fraud.

She has advised special committees during transactional matters and internal investigations, including whistleblower complaints as well as financial institutions and investment advisors, including in broker-dealer litigation.
